

Families play an important role in their child's development. You know your child best. The first few years of a child's life are very important, but children grow and learn at different rates. If you have any questions about how your child is developing, or if you think that your child might need extra help, WV Birth to Three can help you get the services you need.

WV Birth to Three is here to help your child. For more parent resources, please visit the Families Section of the WV Birth to Three website: www.wvdhhr.org/birth23.

YOU KNOW BEST

What is WV Birth to Three?

West Virginia Birth to Three is a system of services and supports for children ages birth to three who have a delay in their development or may be at risk for a delay. The early intervention services are offered at no cost to families and provided in the child's daily natural environment (home or community setting).

Who is eligible?

Any child in West Virginia between the ages of birth through 35 months may be eligible if the child:

- Is not reaching age-appropriate milestones in one or more areas of development,
- Is at risk for developmental delay, or
- Is diagnosed with a condition that may result in a developmental delay.

How can a child/family get help?

Anyone (a parent, doctor, caregiver, teacher, or friend) can make a referral by calling 1-866-321-4728. If the child is determined eligible, an Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP) is written based on the individual needs of the child and family within 45 days of the referral.

If your child is three years old or older contact your local school district to see if your child is eligible for the preschool special education program.

No two children develop exactly alike, but there are stages called developmental milestones that can guide you as a parent about your child's development. The following questions may help you decide if you should ask for support.
