

News from the Bureau for Behavioral Health
Email not displaying properly? View it in your browser.

Bureau for Behavioral Health
February 25, 2021

The West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources' Bureau for Behavioral Health would like to share the following information from the West Virginia Perinatal Partnership about an upcoming webinar:

Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome: The Eat, Sleep, Console Approach

Presented by Matthew Grossman, MD

Associate Professor of Pediatrics, Yale School of Medicine

Pediatric Hospitalist and Quality and Safety Officer, Yale New Haven Children's Hospital

March 2, 2021 | 12:00 pm – 1:00 pm ET | Via GoTo Webinar

The Eat, Sleep and Console approach emphasizes keeping the mother-infant dyad together in a calm setting while encouraging frequent feedings, comforting, and swaddling to treat NAS. Join us to hear Dr. Grossman discuss his groundbreaking study and how it is changing how mothers and babies affected by opioid use disorder are cared for.

Register now for this free webinar :

<https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8379585236563481871>

*CE/CME application in progress

For questions about the webinar contact:

Molly McMillion @ _mmcmillion@osteو.wvsom.edu

This webinar made possible with support from The West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine/ Center for Rural & Community Health.

This program is presented through financial assistance as a grant from the West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources.

Copyright © 2021 WV BBH, All rights reserved.

Our mailing address is:

West Virginia Bureau for Behavioral Health
Room 350
350 Capitol Street
Charleston, WV 25301

Phone: (304) 356-4811

Email: elliott.h.birckhead@wv.gov

forward to a friend | unsubscribe from this list | update subscription preferences