During a fire in a structure that contains foodstuffs, the likelihood of those food items suffering contamination is great and may render those items unfit for human consumptions. Based on the size, nature and characteristics of the fire, the sanitarian shall initiate the procedures on the attached SG-83A to the degree required to eliminate a threat to the public health.

References

History

Attachments
SJG-83A, Instructions for Fire Damage Assessment at Retail Food Stores, Food Service Establishments, Food Processing Plants, and Food Warehouses