

We hope you will join the WV Birth to Three team in July as we review upcoming enhancements to the WVBTT Service Directory and provide information on the new requirement for each practitioner/service coordinator to have a National Provider Identification Number (NPI).

With Service Directory revisions, families and teams will more easily be able to find practitioners based on service locations, methodologies, and specialty training.

With the request for NPI numbers, WV Birth to Three will come into compliance with standards set by the West Virginia Office of Human Services, Bureau for Medical Services.

We look forward to seeing you and are excited to share the Service Directory and assist you in preparing for the new NPI requirements.
